Accommodations

Zadar is a very popular vacation town in Croatia during the summer months. There are many privately rented apartments in the city.

There will not be a conference hotel. It is recommended that you find accommodation on your own. It is recommended that you use Airbnb.com or Booking.com to find an accommodation for yourself. Zadar is a very walkable city but it is recommended you start your search in the old city of Zadar located on the Zadar peninsula. The New Campus of the University of Zadar is located just a few blocks from the peninsula so walking from the old city to the campus is very brief.

Arriving in Zadar

Zadar does have an airport with flights from several European cities each day. It can be sometime hard to get round trip tickets in and out of Zadar unless on a weeklong schedule. Other close airports are Split and Zagreb. Both cities have good bus service to and from Zadar with buses leaving at least hourly. The buses from Split to Zadar can range in time 2 to 4 hours in length. And the buses from Zagreb to Zadar are from 3 to 4 hours. Don't forget the Christmas market in Zagreb noted as the best in Europe the last three years. It is not uncommon for the buses to take longer if the Bora winds are blowing off the Velebit Coastal Mountains of Croatia. Please give yourself enough travel time.

If driving to Zadar – note you should check to see if your accommodations include parking. Parking in the old city is very limited. There is a public parking garage just a few blocks from the New Campus of the University of Zadar. It is best to just park your car and walk in the city center. There are many beautiful shoreline accommodations out of the city center. If you choose one of them you can drive easily to the city center to park and walk to the conference. Walking on the coast road is one of my regular activities in Zadar.

Dr. Cammack is currently on a Fulbright Scholar Grant at the University of Zadar. If you have any question please contact him by email at rcammack@unomaha.edu
